County Federal sold to 2 banks

By Ed Gurney
Staff writer

COLLINSVILLE — The Bank of Edwardsville and First Bank of Illinois in O'Fallon bought portions of Madison County Federal Savings and Loan in deals announced Friday night.

The Bank of Edwardsville acquired the Collinsville, Troy, and Edwardsville operations and First Bank of Illinois bought the savings and loan's Granite City operation.

The facilities reopened Saturday under new ownership.

The purchase prices were not released.

The sale was announced by the Resolution Trust Corporation, the federal agency that has been running Madison County Federal since April 1989 because of the institution's financial problems.

A total of 17 bids were submitted last month for the purchase of the Granite City-based savings and loan, according to Adreon of the RTC, who has been managing agent.

"I'm sure that's higher than average," Adreon said. "There was a lot of interest shown."

United Missouri Bank of Kansas City and Magna Group of Belleville were two of the firms known to have submitted bids.

United Missouri's assets going to each of the two successful banks were being determined at press time Friday. In April, total assets of Madison County Federal were listed at $112.7 million.

Employees were not told the purchasers' names until after facilities closed at 6 p.m. Friday. "This is the best kept secret," a Collinsville employee said shortly before the closing.

Adreon said most of the existing employees will remain with the new owners.

The sale means little to depositors, Adreon said. They can continue to transact business using existing checks, he said.

Deposits continue to be federally insured and will earn contracted rates for at least 180 days. If interest rates drop significantly, that is, if local depositors are entitled to withdraw funds in certificate accounts without an early withdrawal penalty.

Spokesmen for the Bank of Edwardsville and First Bank of Illinois could not be reached for comment.

Pit bull shot after man bit

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — A policeman had a close encounter with a canine Thursday morning. The dog lost.

Patrolman Dennis Shemwell shot a pit bull when it came after him after biting a passerby in the 1700 block of Old State.

"I really thought he had me," Shemwell said, describing how the dog, named Slick, came at him so fast he barely had time to draw his gun.

Shemwell fired four shots at the 75-pound animal, he said, hitting it with three bullets at point-blank range, the fourth from his leg.

Shemwell admitted he was scared.

The resident who witnessed the shooting said Shemwell didn't intentionally antagonize Slick. "He was doing everything possible not to shoot it," the man said.

Police Capt. Don Knight summed up the incident. "He had no choice. It was that-or stand there and get ate up."

Bitten in the attack was John Hearst, 49, of the 2900 block of Denver Street. Hearst was bitten on his shoulder, forearm and hand, according to a medical report. He cries for help.

Hearst was treated and released at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

The incident happened at about 9:30 a.m. in front of the house of the dog's owner, Lawrence Abel of the 1700 block of Old State Street. Abel told Shemwell the Slick had pushed open a screen window to get out of the house.

A resident of the block said Slick frequently got out of the house and roamed the street. The resident said that his name not be disclosed, said the animal had bitten another resident of the block last year.

The resident said he was in his back yard when he heard Hearst yelling for help. "He couldn't talk," the man said of Hearst. "He was in shock."

Hearst has no telephone and could not be reached for comment. The police said Hearst had expressed concern about who would pay for his treatment because he has no health insurance.

Abel also has no telephone and could not be reached for comment.

The resident said Shemwell tried to coax Slick into his car before Granite City humane officers arrived. When the officers, Carl Hoizan and Tom Skubish, arrived they tried to corner the animal so they could get a noose on it.

Shemwell said he was about 24 feet away from Slick and the humane officers when the animal struck him. Shemwell ran with it until it was bared. "I didn't even have my gun out," he said.

After Shemwell shot him, Slick ran around the back of the house and lay there bleeding for about 10 or 15 minutes, Shemwell said. Then Hoizan and Skubish got a noose on the dog and led it, limping to the van.

Slick was taken to the Madison County Rabies Control Headquarters, near Edwardsville, where it was exterminated by lethal injection at about 11:30 a.m. after its owner gave permission.

"It was hardly breathing," said Animal Control Warden Bob Edwards.

Meat cutters picket Schermer's

MADISON — Three former employees of Schermer's Market, members of Meat Cutters Local 534, were on the picket line in front of the store Saturday morning.

"It's not a strike," said Paul Fisk, one of the former employees. "It's more of a protest or labor action."

Fisk, Tom Gehrt and Baxter Crockarell were released by owner Dave Schermer on April 28 after Schermer leased the store's meat and deli-tessen departments to a nonunion unit.

"There's no hatred," Fisk said. "We just want to inform people about what's been going on."

Fisk had been employed by Schermer's almost 28 years, Crockarell 19 years and Gehrt two years. "I think Dave was six years old when I started," Fisk said. "I just don't think it's right to go to work on Saturday and find out about 10 a.m. you don't have a job."

Schermer said the leasing agreement is a common practice in the grocery field and was strictly a business decision.

He said the leasing wasn't a union problem and said the store's commitment to unions was proven when a new contract was signed with the other union in the store shortly after the leasing agreement.

Judge delays Partney sentencing

EAST ALTON — Don, Dave and Dan Partney's fate is still undecided.

The brothers, found guilty of perjury by a jury Jan. 24, were scheduled for hearings on post-trial motions and sentencing Friday afternoon. But the hearing was rescheduled until 9 a.m. Tuesday because Madison County Associate Judge Lola Maddox was ill.

The jury found Don and Dave Partney each guilty of one count of perjury in connection with sworn statements made at the Precinct 3 polling place in March 1989, that their residence was 2500 Missouri Ave., the address of Granite Sheet Metal Inc., the family business.

Dan Partney was found guilty of two counts of perjury based on his having made sworn statements at the same time attesting to his brothers' statements.

Madison County State's Attorney Bill Haine said

Women of Achievement praised as role models

By Lucyann Boston
Staff writer

St. Louis County Executive H.C. Milford called the Women of Achievement "role models who encourage other women to achieve these same roles."

St. Louis Mayor Vincent C. Schenck Jr. praised the women as symbols of the "valuable contributions people can make individually" and said they stand as "symbols of the tens of thousands of people who contribute to the welfare of the community."

The 1989 Women of Achievement for 1989 honored Wednesday at a luncheon at the Ritz Carlton Hotel in Clayton were selected from "more than 200 nominations from all parts of the metropolitan area. They represent the wide diversity of accomplishments" of women in this region, said Thomas Marschel, president of the Suburban Journals.

The St. Louis area is "the better because of the number of women by far," Marschel said.

Judy Simms, speaking for CBS Senior Vice President and KMOX Radio General Manager Robert H. Hyland, Simms in public affairs director of KMOX.

In an invocation the Rev. Clarence Carr praised the Women of Achievement as "representing the best of the human spirit."

There were few among the 900 people who attended the 35th annual luncheon, sponsored by the Suburban Journals and KMOX Radio, who would have disagreed with some of those statements.

Milford jokingly noted that he believed so strongly in the Women of Achievement program that as soon as he was named county executive last fall, he appointed a Woman of Achievement from 1988, Dee Joyner, as his chief of staff.

Bethalto attorney beats three charges of DUI

By Roger Kramer

Staff Writer

EDWARDSVILLE — Bethalto attorney Paul Pratt has been charged with drunken driving three times since 1986, and three times he's beaten the odds.

Pratt never has been convicted of driving under the influence.

Prosecutors twice have dropped charges against Pratt while Pratt was acquitted of another charge.

In each case, Madison County judges rescinded six-month suspensions of Pratt's driver's license. The six-month suspension is automatically given to people who are arrested and refuse to take blood-alcohol tests.

Last year, about 10 percent of people arrested on DUI charges statewide and 21.5 percent of people arrested in Madison County had their suspensions rescinded, according to statistics released by Secretary of State Jim Edgar.

"More than 90 percent end up losing their licenses, so it's very unusual when someone is arrested three times and doesn't lose their license," Edgar spokesman Mike Hennessey said.

Last year, Madison County's rescission rate was the second highest in Illinois. That rate—and Pratt's ability to avoid suspension and conviction—concerns Illinois State Police Sgt.

David Jung

"We want the vigorous prosecution of drunken driving," Jung said. "When that doesn't happen, we have a problem, and it's a problem that needs to be addressed with the judiciary."

If he refused the breath test, whether or not he is innocent or guilty, his license should be suspended. It seems pretty obvious that if he has been arrested seven times, the defendant has a problem with alcohol and driving," Jung said.

Pratt did not return telephone calls. In the past, he has cited medical conditions that would allow him to refuse tests.

Assistant State's Attorney Greg Erthal, who handles most of the county's DUI cases, said the high rescission rate may be tied to the quality of the county's defense attorneys.

"The DUI law is an exceptionally complicated law. A good defense attorney can find the holes. People aren't dumb around here; they know how to get the better defense attorney," Erthal said.

Pratt, a prominent personal-injury attorney and a major contributor to Democratic candidates, was first arrested on Dec. 14, 1986, after a minor traffic accident at Illinois Route 140 in Cottage Hills.

State Police Trooper James Sohn said Pratt refused to take blood-alcohol tests. His driving license was suspended, according to court documents. Circuit Judge Edward Ferguson, then an associate judge, rescinded the suspension on Jan. 29, 1987, because Sohn's notice failed to specify why the suspension would take effect.

In order, Ferguson said the rescission would not affect the merits of the prosecution's case.

The case was delayed nine months until former Assistant State's Attorney J. Lawrence Keshner, now an associate judge, asked that the charge be dismissed because he couldn't find a witness to testify.

"He couldn't be reached. He was the complaining witness, and if you don't have him, you have no case," Keshner said.

State Police normally don't force injured troopers to testify, but Jung said many testify voluntarily.

"If he would have been asked to come in and testify, I'm sure he would have come in and testified. I would also think the state's attorney could have subpoenaed the retired officer," Jung said.

Pratt's second DUI arrest was Jan. 20, 1989, in his law office parking lot. A motorist reported Pratt's Mercedes was stopped on Route 11 near Bethalto, and Trooper Loren Bast arrested him.

According to court documents, Pratt refused field sobriety and blood alcohol tests. Bast said.

On Feb. 23, 1989, Associate Judge Ellar Duff rescinded the suspension because of "impropriety in the officer's sworn report."

Duff acquitted Pratt of that DUI charge April 14, 1989.

Two attorneys in Pratt's law firm, Eric J. Decker and Rand Hale, said Bast was citing Pratt and "egging him on" while Pratt was briefly held at the Madison County Jail.

"I thought he was guilty, but the judge didn't think so," Erthal said. "I thought we had enough evidence."

Duff said Pratt's prominence didn't affect her ruling.

"I know his name is in the news a lot, but I don't look at that. I look at the facts," Duff said.

Jung backed Bast's conduct.

"I know Trooper Bast. He and all our troopers are professionals, and being professionals they don't egg anybody on," he said.

Pratt was arrested a third time Sept. 30, 1989, when his car collided with a pickup truck in Pontoon Beach. He also was charged with resisting arrest after he allegedly scuffled with officer Dan Able.

According to court documents, Able said Pratt refused field sobriety and blood alcohol tests.

Pratt contended he was unable to perform the tests because of muscle and back problems.

Associate Judge Robert Hennessey rescinded the suspension because, he said, inability to take the test doesn't constitute a refusal.

"An individual suffering from a back problem, if that person smokes or has a nose, it could hurt like hell," Hennessey said.

Hennessey dismissed the charges April 30 at the request of Assistant State's Attorney Robert Trone, who said the rescission forced him to dismiss the tests.

"I think the judge's finding was reasonable," Trone said. "The only reason why people are excited is because it is Paul Pratt, the attorney. He received special attention."

Pratt also has law offices in Granite City.

Friends honor Methodist pastor

Church

Parishioners from the United Methodist Church of Madison hosted a party April 28 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob E. and Grace Clegg to mark the Rev. Vernon Brown's pending retirement in June and to celebrate his 68th birthday.

Brown began his ministry in 1945 as a young man of 23. He has served the Madison United Methodist Church since June 1963.

Upon his retirement next month, Brown will have served 45 years in the ministry.

Friends and family members attending the party enjoyed a potluck dinner and fellowship.

A recliner chair, rocking chair and a floor lamp were presented to the minister. His wife, Doris, received a crystal table lamp.

The party was a recognition of the couple's faithful service to the congregation and friends in Madison and vicinity, church members said.

"We wish Rev. Brown many years of healthy, happy retirement. His sense of humor, laughter and his deep concern for everyone will be missed. We have all been blessed in many different ways by having known Rev. Brown and his family," a church spokesman said.

Gateway BPW to install president Wednesday

Shirley Rapoff, a lifelong resident of the Quad City Area and a loan processor, will be installed on Wednesday, May 23, as president of the Gateway Business Professional Women's Club for 1990-1991.

The annual installation dinner will take place at Rusty's Restaurant in Edwardsville. A social hour will begin at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 7 p.m.

Rapoff is the mother of six children — four boys and two girls. She also has eight grandchildren. She has been employed as a loan processor for GMAC Corp. in Collinsville for nine years.

A member of the Gateway BPW for the past 5½ years, Rapoff has held the elective offices of secretary and treasurer and served as chairman of several committees. She is also a member of Holy Family Church.

Other new officers to be installed with Rapoff include: Old Devil vice president, Lori Utges, treasurer; and Ruth Nicholas, secretary.

The new officer corps will be installed by Judy Wiemann, past president of the Edwardsville BPW; past director of District XIX; and former state membership chairman. She currently is serving on the Illinois State Headquarters Fund Board.

Wiemann is employed by the May Company as director of personnel and reserves. Rapoff has selected as her club theme — "Be Effective, Be Proud, Go all the way with BPW."

Reservations may be made through Tuesday by calling 877-8291. Cost of the dinner is $9.

Eureka Springs visited by local senior group

Maxine Duniphan covers the Mitchell area for the Press-Record/Journal. She can be contacted at 931-2714.

Maxine Duniphan

Members of the Chouteau Township Senior Citizens enjoyed a three-day trip to Eureka Springs, Ark., on May 4-6.

The travelers arrived at the Colonial Inn in Eureka Springs and found a "Welcome Chouteau Township Seniors" sign posted in front of the inn.

Although the Great Passion Play had been canceled due to cold and rainy weather, the group enjoyed the rest of their scheduled activities, including "The Ozark Mountain Hoe-down" and the Music Show. After the show everyone went to the Pancake Palace for a late night snack.

On Saturday morning, the excursionists boarded a tour bus and were given a tour of the surrounding area. They visited the Smith Memorial Chapel, "The Burning Bush," the library and viewed a model of the new Holy Land.

The group then went to the Church in the Grove, going through a gate and passing the caretaker's cottage to the seven-story concrete structure known as the Christ of the Ozarks.

The group also visited the Clevier Garden Chapel, where they heard the architect's wife recall the story of her husband's dream, telling him to build the chapel. The unusual structure is constructed of glass and native pine.

After reaching St. Elizabeth Church, they entered the unique building through the arches of its bell tower. They inspected different areas of the church and went through the door which opened into a beautiful walled garden. From a lookout tower in the garden the visitors could view the Christ of the Ozarks statue.

When the guided tour concluded, the group visited the Clevier Garden Club, where they heard the architect's wife recall the story of her husband's dream, telling him to build the chapel. The unusual structure is constructed of glass and native pine.

Members of the group included Bernice and Helen Smith, Dan and Darlene Johnson, Tom and Dolores Scott, Mary Merz, Mary Tolka, Mathilda York, Alta Stewart, Karen Orr, Norma Isenmann and Oliver Joyce Collier and Madison Smith, who reportedly had to cancel due to the sudden illness of their mother.

Several members of the Fontenelle Beach square dance graduating class attended graduation ceremonies of their peer group on May 7 at the Westerher Club in East Alton.

Vernon Mueller Orville Clayton, the class instructor, introduced a special guest, Bill Stutz, vice president of the League of Clubs (Square Dance). He presented the graduating certificates and congratulated the participants after the graduation meeting for the League of Clubs.

"The club meets on the fourth Monday of each month at the Zion Lutheran Church on Craig Road, near West Port Plaza in St. Louis," Stutz said. "All square dancers are welcome," he added.

Stutz also encouraged everyone to continue to dance through the summer months.

Schermer's

He said he had agreed to a one-year lease with the company.

"This isn't going to hurt the customers," Schermer said. "Because this person will live and die by how the meat department does, and nothing else, the customer should get even better service."

He said the meat and deli departments represented about 25 percent of the store's volume and 15 percent of its floor space. Schermer said he offered the meat-cutters the option of leasing the departments more than a year ago, but they had declined.

Fisk said, as he understood it, the option had been offered to Gehrs, but was tied up with a lot of demands and restrictions that made it unacceptable.

"Dave never even spoke to me about it until after it was a dead deal," he said.

Fisk said there is some doubt about the leasing agreement and

Horseshoe Lake at highest level in years

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The water level in Horseshoe Lake is as high as it has been in at least eight years, said bonding Site Supervisor Lynn Wright has been stationed at the shallow lake in the Illinois Conservation Department's Horseshoe Lake State Park.

Wright said Thursday, after the heaviest rains had stopped, that the lake now averages about five feet — or two feet higher than normal. "I've never seen it higher than it is now," he said.

He warned that if more rain arrived, as had been forecast, parts of Bend Road and even Illinois 116 could be submerged, since the deep lake has less reserve capacity.

Rain had not arrived as of Saturday morning, when the Journal went to press, but another six inches of water would cover the causeway to the park island, and parts of the park would have to be closed, he said.

Another three feet of water in the lake would cause flooding to the roads, it was estimated.

Walter "Shang" Greathouse, executive director of the Missouri River District, said there is little he can do to lower the lake level or prevent flooding.

Greathouse said the Cahokia Canal, connected to the lake via two small streams, is full, so he wouldn't be able to draw it down enough to drain the lake.

When the lake is full and the canals are full, there is little that can be done quickly, Greathouse said.

He said that, overall, the MSSP flood protection system came through last week's rains in fine shape. He said all the pumps are working and there were only a couple of levee breaks. He said the problem was more minor, too much water.

The Mississippi River rises up over Lenore K. Sullivan Drive on the St. Louis waterfront and onto the parking lot of the Low Water Dam at Chain of Rocks. It was expected to rise Saturday at least one foot over its height, but that was assuming that no more rain fell. Forecasts Friday were calling for intermittent rain during the weekend.

Children's benefit based on half of parent's check

By Bill Hunot
Social Security Administration

I have been on Social Security disability since 1983. My wife died in 1986. I am about half of mine. I have heard that some children draw the same amount as their father. How are the children's benefits figured?

A. Children of a disabled worker usually receive Social Security benefits based on half of the worker's check. If more than one child is receiving, the children share that amount. And if the worker had been earning before becoming disabled, the amount paid to his children may be even less. Benefits for a disabled worker's family were decreased in 1989, but people receiving benefits already were entitled to the change.

There are higher limits for families of retired workers and surviving children's benefits are paid at a higher rate.

Q. I read that Social Security does not give benefits to widows until they are 60 years old. Isn't there an exception to this? I know there are women who are younger than that who get benefits.

A. There are a couple of exceptions. Social Security pays benefits to disabled widows and widowers who are at least age 50. Even younger widows and widowers get benefits if they are taking care of a child who is under age 16 or disabled. Otherwise age 60 is the minimum age.

Q. I'm concerned about the exact date I should be filing for Social Security. In April 1990, I will be 60 years old. When can I collect widow's benefits at that time? When do I apply and what will I need to bring to the office?

A. Apply for benefits two or three months before age 60.

You will need to submit your birth certificate, your husband's death certificate and your marriage certificate to prove your eligibility. Photocopies are not acceptable, but originals documents will be returned to you. You also will be asked for information about the financial organization you deal with so your Social Security benefits can be deposited directly into your account.

More information on the phone can apply for benefits over the phone and through the mail and no visit to an office is necessary. If you want to come to an office, it is a good idea to call ahead for an appointment. Call 800-234-5727.

Q. I have a few questions about Social Security's disability program. What is the Social Security definition of disability? What percentage of applicants are denied? What is the average benefit when a worker becomes disabled?

A. To be disabled by Social Security rules, a person must be so impaired that he or she is unable to do any kind of substantial work and his or her disability must be expected to last for at least 12 months or to result in his death. This is a difficult test to meet. Many people who qualify for disability benefits are employed by companies, employers' disability plans and even other government agencies will not meet the Social Security requirements.

In October 1989, 38,045 people applied for Social Security disability benefits. About 70 percent of them—54,377—were denied.

After the cost of living adjustment in January 1990, the average benefit paid to a disabled worker will be $555.

Chappell, Chaney have golf clinic at Arlington in June

Warrior golf coach Russ Chappell and Boon Chaney are again having a free golf clinic at Arlington City Club.

The clinic will be June 4-5 beginning at 9 a.m. each day. All students eighth grade and older are welcome for the early session, with younger students invited to sit in on the first day. Students will need at least a sev- en iron and a putter.

On Tuesday the participants will be divided into smaller groups. The clinic format will be to "teach proper fundamentals of the golf swing."

Set in the 100 meters in the entire state after her 12.5 performance at the Red Bud Sectional, made it to Saturday's finals with a time of 12.7 in the semifinals. That followed at 12.84 in the preliminaries.

Gardner also made it to the finals along with teammates Shermaine Russell, Tramia Burt and Latrisia Swift in both the 400 and 300 relays. The Trojans ran .51 in the 400 and 47.8 at the 300.

"But Gardner couldn't make the cut in the 200 meters. She ran 27.8 in the preliminaries, but had 28.53 times in the semifinals," said Moden. "She is a good runner, not only for her but for the entire team. We needed a strong game to enter the post-season."

"Mia had a real good outing," said Edwards. "It was a confidence builder, not only for her but for the entire team. We needed a strong game to enter the post-season."

The Lady Warriors end the regular season with a 3-45 p.m. home game against Collinsville on Monday, then play at Wood River (12 p.m.) in the Bethalto Regional at 4 p.m. Tuesday. Granite City is the sixth seed in the seven-team regional and Wood River is third.

Car care

Fluid protects transmission life

Many automatic transmission problems are brought on by low fluid level. This condition promotes transmission slip, rough shifts, power loss and noise, and is sometimes responsible for abnormal engine heat.

By erratic transmission operation and major repair bills also can be the result of too much fluid, or by fluid that has become contaminated. When the transmission is overfilled, it usually results in foaming and fluid. This will affect proper shifting and may eventually lead to serious transmission damage.

Much the same warning should apply to fluid that is overused for cleaning. Failure to replace transmission fluid and filters in keeping with factory maintenance recommendations is a common mistake. It means extra wear on parts or transmission slippage, abnormal shifting and will almost certainly cause early transmission breakdown.

Some low fluid problems are caused by leakage, which is a possibility even in a new car. Leakage can therefore, if it is a good idea to check the fluid level about once a month or so. When leaks develop, defective seals are generally to blame and must be replaced.

Other car-care tips follow:

*Low gas mileage often can be

Eugene B.
Milmoe

blamed on a careless car owner who allows engine oil, transmission fluid, radiator coolant or tire pressure to drop too low. Any of these conditions can cause the engine to overwork and shorten gas mileage.

*When an engine misfires due to an extra-clean fuel mixture, a dirty carburetor is a likely cause. There are times, however, when a lean fuel mix will be traced to unlike air leakage at the carburetor base, or to a vacuum hose leak.

*Excessive heat and sulfur odors from the catalytic converter do not necessarily mean a replacement is needed. These troubles can also result from an incorrect air-to-fuel ratio. An exhaust gas analysis can determine if the problem is engine malfunction or converter failure.

*Incorrect ignition timing will usually cause a combination of troubles. The most common are hard starts, roughness, power loss, backfire, engine noise and gas mileage decline.

*Brake pads or linings must be replaced if they become grease-soaked by front wheel bearing lubricant that squeezes past grease seals.

Eugene B. Milmoe has written numerous articles for national publications and the electronic media during a writing and teaching career that has lasted more than 50 years. Milmoe's Your Car column, which first appeared in June 1988, was the first automotive column ever distributed by a newspaper syndicate.

Enrichment and fortification return some nutrients to food

With label-consciousness on the rise, it helps to know what terms are used on food labels. The terms "enriched" and "fortified" refer to the addition of nutrients to food, but the basic concepts differ.

Enrichment is the restoration of nutrients lost during food processing. Certain nutrients, but usually not all, are added back to levels close to those in the original food. The grain used in white flour, for example, has been stripped of fiber and nutrients found in the bran and the germ. Of course, 22 nutrients are removed; however, only iron, three B vitamins and none of the fiber are restored in standard enrichment.

Fortification refers to the addition of nutrients that either are not normally present in food or present only in nutritionally insignificant amounts. Several important fortification measures in the past 40 years have helped combat major nutritional deficiencies. These include fortification of milk to prevent rickets and the addition of iodine to salt to prevent goiter.

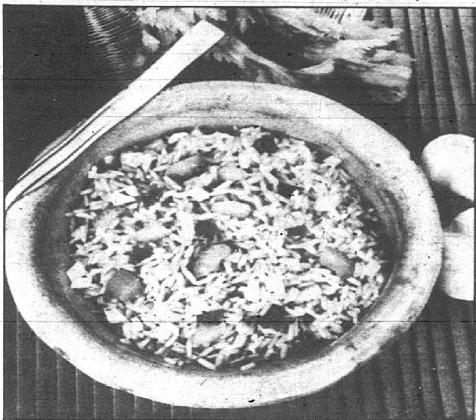

Today cereals and other foods also can be found that are heavily fortified with a great deal of fiber and as much as 100 percent of the U.S. Recommended Dietary Allowance (RDA) for some nutrients, such as calcium, protein and many vitamins.

Some nutrition experts suggest no substitute for eating a varied and well-balanced diet. Because some basic nutrients are missing from enriched versions of foods, it's best to eat whole grains and choose whole grain products.

Brown rice, like that used in rice à la Grecque, fits this role.

If it has not been bleached like commonly-used white rice, then even a quick-cooking brown rice which can be prepared in 10 minutes.

Microwave cooks meat while grilling finishes flavor, aroma

By Barb Gray
Certified home economist

America's favorite summer ritual centers around the barbecue grill. It looks easy enough, but a successful barbecue demands more than lighting a fire and putting meat on a grill.

Combining a microwave oven with a grill or charcoal or gas grill offers several advantages.

It reduces cooking time, especially for small items like chicken pieces and ribs. It prevents drying of food like pork chops and turkey burgers, which tend to reach high internal temperatures. Partial cooking by microwave also ensures that meats will be succulent and fully cooked inside by the time a grill gives them a rich, golden-brown color and their distinctive barbecued aroma and flavor.

The grill and pre-microwaved foods should be ready at the same time. Take food directly from the microwave to the grill. Wind and weather affect cooking time, so use recipe time as a guideline and check food periodically for doneness.

Micro-grilling takes the guesswork out of barbecueing the poultry and pork. There must be a high internal temperature in order to be cooked fully. With grilling alone, they can burn on the surface before the interior is done. Beef and lamb can be overcooked if they require a low internal temperature.

To micro-grill chicken pieces: Arrange 2½ to 3 pounds chicken pieces in 10-inch square casserole with meaty portions toward outside edges. Cover with wax paper. Microwave at high, 13 to 15 minutes until exterior is no longer pink, turning over after half the time.

Place on cooking grid over low direct heat. Grill covered until 13 to 15 minutes until no longer pink and juices run clear, basting with desired sauce and turning pieces twice.

Use a favorite commercial barbecue sauce or make a favorite recipe. The sauce can be stored, covered, up to two weeks in a refrigerator. Honey Mustard Sauce also is a delicious blend of ingredients that is prepared quickly in a microwave oven.

Honey mustard sauce

½ cup chopped onion
1 tbsp. oil
2 tsp. mustard seeds
½ cup prepared mustard
2 tbsp. fresh lemon juice
½ cup honey

In 1-quart casserole, combine onion, oil and mustard seeds. Microwave, covered, on high 2 to 3 minutes until onion is very tender, stirring once.

Add mustard, lemon juice and honey, stirring with whisk until combined. Microwave at high, uncovered, 1½ to 3½ minutes until mixture is very hot and begins to boil, stirring once.

Brush chicken, fish or pork with sauce. Let stand 10 to 15 minutes of grilling. Also can be served on the side with meat.

PIZZA TAKES many forms and flavors, with the help of prepared sausage, shredded cheese and refrigerated crust.

Custom pizza made best from 'scratch'

"Home on the Range" has creative meaning to many cooks, but dedication sometimes yields to time demands when a recipe must be devised that appeals to everyone. Pizza is as easy as a freezer to bake a frozen version or the telephone for home delivery in many communities.

Here is a pizza customized for a special audience. It is made from scratch—if convenience products qualify. The base begins with refrigerated pizza crust. Barbecue sauce, chunks of pineapple and fresh Italian tomatoes follow. Finish with a layer of shredded mozzarella cheese.

Ham and pineapple pizza

1 lb. ham sliced, cut in thin strips
1 pkg. (10 oz.) refrigerated pizza crust
1 cup barbecue sauce
1 cup pineapple chunks
2 fresh Italian tomatoes, sliced
1/4 cup (6 oz.) shredded mozzarella cheese

Unroll crust. Press in greased 12-inch pizza pan. Spread barbecue sauce on crust. Top with ham, pineapple and tomato. Sprinkle with cheese.

Bake in 425° oven 15 to 20 minutes until crust is golden.

Makes 8 servings.

A molded salad is a cool counterpoint to the pizza, which can be prepared in advance and served without fuss.

Sun-sational lemon mold

2 cups cold water
1 large cold (6 oz.) lemon gelatin
1 cup (6 oz.) frozen lemonade concentrate
1/2 cup mayonnaise-type salad dressing
1/2 cup frozen whipped topping, thawed
1/2 cup (11 oz.) mandarin orange segments, drained
1 banana, sliced

Bring water to boil. Gradually add to gelatin, stirring until dissolved. Add lemonade concentrate. Stir until melted. Cool.

Gradually add to salad dressing, mixing until blended. Chill, covered, until firm. Turn out and set. Fold in whipped topping, oranges and bananas. Pour into 9-inch square pan or 2-quart bowl. Chill until firm.

Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Warm weather steps up need for water

By Jacqueline Lankford
Registered dietitian
American Heart Association

A reader recently wrote the heart association with the following questions: "What is the best beverage for fluid replacement when exercising vigorously? How much is needed and how often?"

Both are particularly pertinent with hot weather and increased physical activity about to blossom. They apply to a person who takes a vigorous walk, bikes across the state of Iowa or pushes a lawn mower.

In spite of what many commercials would have you believe, water is the best beverage for fluid replacement. Commercial products contain added minerals and sugar, yet plain water still is the best bet.

Thirst is the prime indicator of oncoming dehydration, so do not wait until you are thirsty to drink. Drink at least eight 8-ounce glasses of water every day. Before rigorous exercise, drink an additional 16 ounces or more. Continue drinking water throughout the activity every 10 to 20 minutes, especially in hot weather.

Another way to ensure enough water is taken into the system between workouts is to eat fruits and vegetables. Some are almost all water. For example, cucumbers and watermelon replace liquids lost during physical activity. A food like Gazpacho, a traditional warm-weather soup, is perfect for doing this.

Gazpacho

6 cups fresh ripe tomatoes, peeled and chopped, or canned plum tomatoes, chopped roughly 1 onion, chopped roughly
1/2 cup crushed green pepper
1/2 cup chunks cucumber
2 cups tomato juice
1/2 tsp. cumin, if desired
1 clove garlic, minced
Freshly ground black pepper cup oil
cup wine vinegar
cup finely chopped onion cup finely chopped green pepper cup finely chopped cucumber
1 cup finely chopped tomato
Garlic croutons

In blender, puree 6 cups tomatoes, roughly chopped onion and chunks of green pepper and cucumber. Add oil, vinegar, cumin, garlic and ground pepper. Cover. Chill.

Before serving, add oil and vinegar. Serve accompanied by side dishes of finely chopped tomato, green pepper and cucumber. Garnish with croutons.

Yields about 1 1/4 quarts; 131 calories, 8 gm. fat, 268 mg. sodium and no cholesterol per 1-cup serving.

1/2 cup taco or enchilada sauce
2 large eggs, beaten
Tortilla chips, if desired

Cook and stir beef in large skillet over medium heat about 10 minutes until brown and finely crumbled. Drain off fat drippings.

Mix beef, cheeses, chilies, taco sauce and eggs in large bowl.

Transfer to 8-inch square baking dish.

Set down dough. Turn into well-greased and sugared 3-quart mold, 10-inch tube pan or 10-inch fluted tube pan. Let rise, covered, about 1 hour until double in volume.

Bake at 400° for 20 to 25 minutes until golden brown. Cool 5 minutes. Remove from pan. Serve warm.
